The Honorable Daniel Patrick Moynihan
United States Senate

Dear Senator Moynihan:

Your January 16, 1996, letter requested information on past debt ceiling limitations and actions that the Department of the Treasury (Treasury) has taken to avoid defaulting on government obligations. In our January 26, 1996, letter to you, we discussed actions taken by Treasury during debt ceiling crises since September 30, 1984.¹ As agreed with your office, the enclosure to this letter provides information on (1) when the outstanding debt subject to the statutory debt limit was within $25 million² of the public debt limit between July 1, 1954, and September 30, 1984, (2) the debt ceiling crises occurring between September 30, 1984, and February 15, 1996, and (3) when the statutory debt ceiling has been revised since June 26, 1946.

CHANGES IN THE DEBT CEILING

The federal government began with a public debt of about $78 million in 1789 and since then the Congress has attempted to control the size of the debt by imposing ceilings on the amount of public debt that can be issued. Until 1941, the Congress set ceilings on the various types of Treasury securities that could be issued. In February 1941, the Congress set an overall ceiling of $65 billion on all types of Treasury securities that could be outstanding at any one time. This ceiling was raised several times between February 1941 and June 1946 when a ceiling of $275 billion was set and remained in effect until August 1954. At that time, the Congress imposed the first temporary debt ceiling which added $6 billion to the $275 billion permanent ceiling. Since that time, the Congress has enacted numerous temporary and permanent increases in the debt ceiling which currently stands at $4.9 trillion.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE DEBT
CEILING TO THE OUTSTANDING DEBT

As shown in the following chart, the relationship between the public debt limit and the amount of outstanding debt is very close.³

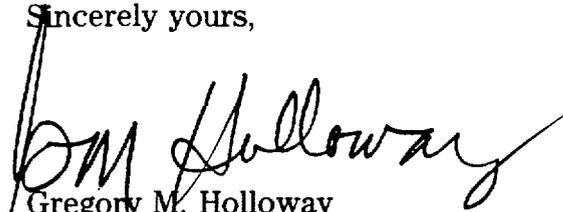

In order to determine when a debt ceiling crisis may have arisen, we reviewed historical Treasury documents for the period July 1, 1954, through February 15, 1996, and identified 21 periods when the outstanding debt subject to the statutory debt limit was within $25 million of the debt ceiling.

³These figures are nominal dollars. They are not adjusted for inflation or for growth in the economy.
